American Psychiatric Association Names Rebecca Rinehart as APPI Publisher

ARLINGTON, Va. (May 4, 2011)—Rebecca Rinehart, former publisher for The Endocrine Society, has been named Publisher, American Psychiatric Publishing, Inc. (APPI), the American Psychiatric Association announced. Ms. Rinehart served as senior director and publisher at The Endocrine Society since 2008, overseeing the society's publishing program, including its four scientific journals, three periodicals, books and CME programs, and Endocrine News.

"Ms. Rinehart brings broad publishing experience in biomedical science and health education," said James H. Scully, Jr., M.D., APA medical director and CEO. "We are delighted to have Ms. Rinehart's leadership as APPI continues its function as a full-service publishing house for the field of psychiatry and mental health."

Ms. Rinehart previously served as director of publications at The American College of Obstetricians & Gynecologists, where she developed a publishing program of books, journals, periodicals, and consumer literature. She started her career at Harper & Row Publishers, where she rose to the position of senior medical editor for acquisitions.

Ms. Rinehart is from Western Maryland and lives in Northwest Washington, DC, and Martinsburg, WV, with her husband.

American Psychiatric Publishing, Inc. (APPI) is the world's premier publisher of books, journals, and multimedia on psychiatry, mental health and behavioral science. APPI offers authoritative, up-to-date and affordable information geared toward psychiatrists, other mental health professionals, psychiatric residents, medical students and the general public. APPI is a division of the American Psychiatric Association. There is more information at www.appi.org and www.PsychiatryOnline.com.
